Covid-19 Update

We advise with the ongoing implication of the SARS based Coronavirus (COVID-19) dynamic situation remains and changes can happen readily, so we thought it was prudent to provide our visitors with an update on both our status and readiness for future events.

Werkflo is fully operational with no degradation in our ability to provide our services to clients. Neither do we expect any reduction in our ability in the near future.

We have fully geographic located personnel capable of working from home and believe in offering flexible arrangements. In addition, we have data centres with connectivity from them. Werkflo is continuing to closely monitor developments across the globe and in Australia with our software being available to clients as their workforce also responds to the developing situation.

Werkflo asks all our clients, prospective clients, team members, shareholders, etc. to be careful, be vigilant and be assured that our software, which is critical to our clients' businesses, remains fully operational no matter where they are located around the world.

End.
